DATA PROTECTION POLICY¹

Introduction

Littleport Parish Council has a responsibility under the Data Protection Act 2018 to hold, obtain, record, use and store all personal data relating to an identifiable individual in a secure and confidential manner. This Policy is a statement of what the Parish Council does to ensure its compliance with the Act.

This Data Protection Policy applies to all Parish Council employees, Councillors, volunteers, and contractors. The Policy provides a framework within which the Parish Council will ensure compliance with the requirements of the Act and will underpin any operational procedures and activities connected with the implementation of the Act.

Littleport Parish Council is registered with the Information Commissioner's Office (ICO) under Register Entry No Z9030051.

Background

The Data Protection Act 2018 governs the handling of personal information that identifies living individuals directly or indirectly and covers both manual and computerised information. It provides a mechanism by which individuals about whom data is held (the "data subjects") can have a certain amount of control over the way in which it is handled.

Some of the main features of the Act are:

- All data covered by the Act must be handled in accordance with the Six Data Protection Principles. They are as follows –
 - First Principle "processed lawfully, fairly and in a transparent manner in relation to individuals";
 - Second Principle "collected for specified, explicit and legitimate purposes and not further processed in a manner that is incompatible with those purposes; further processing for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes shall not be considered to be incompatible with the initial purposes”;

- Third Principle “adequate, relevant and limited to what is necessary in relation to the purposes for which they are processed”;
 - Fourth Principle “accurate and, where necessary, kept up to date; every reasonable step must be taken to ensure that personal data that are inaccurate, having regard to the purposes for which they are processed, are erased or rectified without delay”;
 - Fifth Principle “kept in a form which permits identification of data subjects for no longer than is necessary for the purposes for which the personal data are processed; personal data may be stored for longer periods insofar as the personal data will be processed solely for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes subject to implementation of the appropriate technical and organisational measures required by the GDPR in order to safeguard the rights and freedoms of individuals”; and
 - Sixth Principle “processed in a manner that ensures appropriate security of the personal data, including protection against unauthorised or unlawful processing and against accidental loss, destruction or damage, using appropriate technical or organisational measures”.
- The person about whom the information is held (the “data subject”) has various rights under the Act, including the right to be informed about what personal data is being processed, the right to request access to that information, the right to request that inaccuracies, or incomplete data, are rectified, and the right to have personal data erased and to prevent, or restrict, processing in specific circumstances. Individuals also have the right to object to processing based on the performance of a task in the public interest/exercise of official authority (including profiling), direct marketing (including profiling); and processing for the purposes of scientific/historical research and statistics. There are also rights concerning automated decision making (including profiling) and data portability.
 - Processing of special categories of data must be done under a lawful basis. This data includes information about race, ethnic origin, political persuasion, religious belief, trade union membership, genetics, biometrics (where used for identification purposes), health, sex life and sexual orientation.
 - The Data Protection Act 2018 deals with criminal offence data in a similar way to special category data and sets out specific conditions providing lawful authority for processing it.
 - There is a principle of accountability of data controllers to implement appropriate technical and organisational measures that include internal data protection policies and procedures, staff training and awareness of the requirements of the Act, internal audits of processing activities, maintaining relevant documentation on processing activities, appointing a data protection officer, and implementing measures that meet the principles of data protection by design and data protection by default, including data minimisation, transparency, and creating and improving security features on an ongoing basis.

- Data protection impact assessments are carried out where appropriate as part of the design and planning of projects, systems and programmes.
- Data controllers must have written contracts in place with all data processors and ensure that processors are only appointed if they can provide 'sufficient guarantees' that the requirements of the Act will be met and the rights of data subjects protected.
- Data breaches that are likely to result in a risk to the rights and freedoms of individuals must be reported to the Information Commissioner's Office within 72 hours of the Controller becoming aware of the breach. Where a breach is likely to result in a high risk to the rights and freedoms of individuals, the Council will notify those individuals concerned directly.
- The Information Commissioner is responsible for regulation and issue notices to organisations where they are not complying with the requirements of the Act. The Information Commissioner also has the ability to prosecute those who commit offences under the Act, and to issue fines.
